Quebec Youth Wins Double Ski Title

Andre Bertrand Downhill Winner in Record Time

BANFF, Alta., March 3.—(CP)—Andre Bertrand, 17-year-old student from Laval University, Quebec, today zoomed down Mount Norquay's steep slope in the course record time of 2:01.0 to win the Canadian downhill ski championship.

Time for the short, sturdy Quebecer was 23 seconds faster than world champion Zeno Cole of Italy took last week to win the North American downhill title.

Bertrand, who also won the Canadian junior title with his spectacular effort, slammed down the 1 1/2 mile course which falls 2,500 feet, three-tenths of a second faster than Gen Schop of Austria, who set the record in the North American race and was the pre-race favorite for the Canadian championship.

BANFF MAN FIFTH
Bob Richardson, ski instructor at Mount Tremblant, Que., finished in third place in a race of 2:04.5. Peter Johnson of Banff, 1948 Canadian title holder, placed fourth with 2:07.4.

Andy Tommy, 17-year-old Ottawa boy who won the junior title last year, placed sixth in the junior honours and tied with Gordon Morrison of Banff for fifth in the senior show, their times were 2:07.3.

Seventh in the mixed field of 31 skiers and seven junior competitors was Frank Aklavik of Vancouver, who was clocked at 2:08.7. "There were 34 skiers," including Frank Mattheis of Alberta, 1948 United States four-way champion, from the original entry of 56 runners.

Bertrand, who dipped down the trail which starts 1,000 feet from the top of 8,275-foot Mount Norquay at an average speed of about 45 miles an hour, is believed the first junior in Canadian ski history to win both senior and junior titles.

Other racers to place in the first 15 are: James Gosses, Owen Sound, Ont., eighth, 2:11.5; Raymond Hoyle, Quebec City, ninth, 2:12.4; Bob Dawson, Toronto, 10th, 2:13.2; Hayes, Banff, 11th, 2:16.5; Gordon Coombs, Vancouver, 12th, 2:20.9; Bill Robinson, Toronto, 13th, 2:21.2; George Merry, Trail, B.C., 14th, 2:22.2; and Alex McDougall, Ottawa, 15th, 2:25.2.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY
The charges of bribery were made by Arthur Wray, independent Social Credit member. He claimed that the Westcoast Transmission company had paid $300,000 "to pave the way for a franchise to export natural gas from Alberta."

RULED OUT OF ORDER
Vote of the assembly upheld Speaker Hon. Peter Davidson's ruling that Mr. Wray's statement was out of order. Only three opposition members sided with Mr. Wray.

The speaker ruled that the House was not at liberty to discuss the company's dealings while its application was before a court.

NAVY HELPS DIVE FOR GOLD SUNK IN 1588

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—The Royal Navy has agreed to help the Duke of Argyll look for a sunken treasure ship and its legendary cargo of $60,000,000 worth of Spanish gold and silver.

A motor launch and a fishing vessel carrying navy divers left for Torbay, Isle of Mull, to search for the rich haul.

For nearly 400 years, treasure hunters have been trying to tap the cargo of gold and silver which the Spanish galleon Duquesa carried to the bottom in 1588.

Message Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(BUP)—President Truman asked Congress today for authority to take over the soft coal mines and operate them temporarily "as a public service."

In a special message to the House and Senate he said he hoped soft coal operators and the United Mine Workers would reach a strike-ending agreement "before it actually becomes necessary for the government to take possession of the mines."

"But we can wait no longer to prepare ourselves with the necessary legislative authority," he said.

Gas Test Case May Affect Much Land

By C. V. MYERS
Bulletin Oil Editor

Fate of natural gas beneath 10,000,000 acres of land in Alberta may hinge on the outcome of a test now before the Alberta supreme court.

The legal proceedings opened Wednesday when Chief Justice W. R. H. Brown granted an injunction to Michael Borys (owner of a 100-acre farm in the Leduc oilfield) restraining Imperial Oil Company Ltd. and Canadian Pacific Railway from making any disposition of the natural gas on his farm.

Borys filed a statement of claim against the two companies for $500,000.

He claimed he is the "owner" of the natural gas on his property and that the companies are trying to remove the utility without his consent or without compensation to him.

FAR-REACHING EFFECT
Imperial Oil claims to have a lease from the CPR in the drilling of its well (Leduc No. 250) on the farmer's property. CPR holds the mineral rights to the land.

The result of this case may hinge on its bearing on an estimated 10,000,000 acres of land in the province to which the CPR holds mineral rights.

Imperial Oil may be forced to suspend drilling operations on its Leduc No. 250 as a result of the court injunction.

Whenever oil is produced gas comes up with it, some of it is sold under pressure to the CPR. Imperial has a right to take all the oil, but they dare not touch the gas.

CANNOT MOVE
Imperial Oil claims the mineral rights from the CPR are not to include petroleum, coal, and valuable stone. Until now it has always taken gas granted that gas goes along with petroleum.

But not by Mr. Borys. He does not quarrel with the sale of the oil, but he wants them to leave his gas alone.

Mr. Borys has not proved that he owns the gas but the injunction restrains Imperial Oil from selling a court decision is given.

SHATTERING EFFECTS
The effects of the strike, if it continued, were expected to reach shattering proportions by next week. Leaders of industry said that by their major plants will be halted.

Death Plane Parcel Sent By 'Mrs. Pitre'

QUINCE, B.C., March 3.—(CP)—An airmail agent today told the jury trying J. Albert Guay for murder that a parcel delivered at Quebec airport by a "Mrs. Pitre" was placed aboard a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane which later crashed into the sea.

Willie Lamonde, CPA agent at the airport, said the parcel of heavy iron ore, was placed in the left, forward luggage compartment before the plane took off Sept. 9 on a flight that ended in disaster at Saint John Coodon, 40 miles from here.

MRS. GUAY KILLED
Previous witnesses in the case in which the crown seeks to prove Guay arranged to have a time bomb placed aboard the airliner have said the plane was wrecked after it crashed into the sea.

Lamonde did not identify Mrs. Pitre further, but last week Crown Prosecutor Noel Doran said he would attempt to prove that Mrs. Arthur Pitre, one of the crown's key witnesses, placed aboard the plane a parcel that was responsible for the explosion.

Mr. Pitre was described in evidence at the preliminary hearing last fall as a friend of Guay's.

PAID CHARGES
Lamonde said Mrs. Pitre brought the parcel to the airport in a taxi and paid the shipping charges on it. The parcel bore the names of the sender and the addressee, but Lamonde said he did not see Guay's name on it.

When the wreckage of the trial opened this morning, an airport baggage handler told the jury that no freight was loaded in the left, forward luggage compartment when the plane left Montreal. The plane flew a regular schedule between Montreal and Sept-les-Bains.

CLOTHING TORN
The woman's clothing was torn when she returned home Tuesday.

Her fur coat was ripped down the back.

They are hoping the taxi driver will come forward and establish the district where the woman was picked up. Police believe it may be possible to pick up the trail of her movements if a start can be made through the taxi driver's evidence.

Patient Dead Before Dose

MANCHESTER, N.H., March 3.—(AP)—A dead nurse testified today Mrs. Abbie Borroto had a death pillow and was not breathing some minutes before Dr. Hermann N. Sander ever injected air into the woman's veins.

She thought she was dead," said Mrs. Cecilia Smith, who had stopped at the patient's bedside in the Hillsboro County hospital last Dec.

Mrs. Smith, a defence witness, said she failed to detect any pulse in the 39-year-old cancer-stricken woman during her first visit to the bedside the morning Mrs. Borroto died.

Later, the nurse testified she returned with Dr. Albert Snay and that he took Mrs. Borroto's pulse and listened for her heart beat through a stethoscope.

Dr. Snay has signed a statement that the woman was dead when he looked at her and that he so indicated to Dr. Sander as the first-degree murder defendant went to the room later.

Dr. Sander is accused of injecting fatal dose of air into Mrs. Borroto's veins in a so-called mercy gesture to end her suffering.

Reds Barred From States

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(UP)—The state department today barred from the United States 15 men listed delegation which sought to come here from Europe to petition congress to halt atomic weapons and end the arms race.

The department refused visas for the delegation, which included the Rev. Hewitt Johnson, the so-called Red Dean of Canterbury.

LOST IN WOODS for one old night near Gastonia, N.C., was Gary Lundquist, eight, and neighbor's dog. Shivering youngster, face and hands scratched by the dog, was found sitting under tree. "I wasn't afraid," he said. "I just decided to wait until morning."

Alberta Curlers Off In Search of Brier

Macdonald Tobacco company, sponsor of the Brier playoff, scheduled to get underway at Vancouver Monday, stopped over briefly in the city early this afternoon.

With traffic conditions in the city, skip C. W. Macdonald and two other members of the Alberta rink—Ed Hill and three-man Ross Macdonald—climbed aboard Gordon Hays, who plays second on the rink, left for the coast earlier in the week.

"We appreciate that the competition will be real tough," skip Macdonald said before departing. "But we intend to make a good try at bringing back the Canadian championship with us."

Manitoba is a two-time winner of the Brier.

16 Fire Toll Is Indicated

MONTREAL, March 3.—(CP)—Fourteen persons were reported missing early today in the wake of yesterday's fire, caused four known deaths in Montreal's ancient Chinatown.

Mrs. George Heller, chief director of the Red Cross, said that a room by room check of the Lotus Club, where the fire broke out, showed that 16 persons were missing.

Divisional fire chief E. Ouellette declined to make a guess.

Four bodies are in the morgue, three of them burned beyond recognition.

Searches following the fire, hampered search attempts by laying a covering of sooty ice.

More than a score of Chinese and Europeans were injured, killed, severely, some in leaps and falls in a frenzied attempt to escape from crowded upper-story apartments.

Pension Rate Boost Seen

Debate on the speech from the throne which will be closed in the Alberta legislature this afternoon, as Premier E. C. Manning intends to bring forward a bill to increase the pension rate.

Nineteen government motions appear on today's order paper, including a motion to increase the pension rate in old-age pensioners.

The motion will be introduced by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cuddy, minister of public health and welfare.

U.S., Canada Talk Wheat

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Agriculture Secretary, Charles Brannan of the United States today tentatively agreed to a trade mission to Canada in an attempt to resolve a wheat marketing dispute between the two countries.

They were joined by Agriculture Minister Gidley in Mr. Howe's House of Commons office. Besides wheat, the questions of lifting the Canadian wheat embargo against the movement of pork products between the two countries may be discussed, along with the American protests against the appearance of Canadian politicians on the American market.

However, the main issue centers of wheat which Canada wants to supply, in addition to her present quota, if Japan and Germany are brought into the international wheat agreement.

Speaker's Blast Topples Prexy

Compiled by Charles MacFarlane

You've got to hand it to Elythe Fern Melrose, a trim-figured sales promotion broadcaster from Detroit. She certainly packs a punch when she speaks.

At the end of 1949, she addressed the Canadian Retail Federation in Toronto and said: "Gentlemen, there are times when your wives think not of you, but of all men collectively."

There was a pause . . . then a crash, as a store president sitting at the head-table toppled off the dais.

Smirked Elythe Melrose: "I was afraid that would bowl someone over."

If you doubt this one, ask the post office. Those red mail boxes along the streets of Canada collect more odds and ends than a pawn shop.

At the end of 1949, the post office checked its non-letter list and found: four coats, stolen wallets, a small pile of wrist watches and even a live chicken.

The department put the unusual list up for auction sale, and got $3,000 for the lot.

Frederick Barrell, a brewery worker, was fined $5 ($15.50) yesterday in London for robbing a pedestrian.

In fleeing the scene of the crime, a police inspector told Barrell jumped into a car. It was the police inspector's car.

"I think he mistook it for a taxicab," said the inspector.

Russell Williams, a garage operator, submitted the winning question for a program of a local radio station in Huntington, W.Va.

Williams' prize? Ten free grease jobs at a rival garage.

Workers in a coal yard in Buffalo, N.Y., built a fire under a gondola to thaw a frozen shipment so they could unload it.

The fire ignited the coal. Water put out the fire—and refroze the coal.

There's one bromide that's just been stricken from the vocabulary of Benjamin Greenfield of Newark, N.J. It's the one that says "a chance of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

For 40 years Greenfield has had a burglar alarm system in his pawn shop. There were times when it seemed sort of foolish. Nobody ever tried to break in.

But at last came the time when his precautions were needed. Two armed men broke into the pawn shop in the early morning hours.

So far Greenfield has counted $285 in cash and jewelry valued at $15,000 which the men stole.

The burglar alarm didn't go off.

The officer who arrested Clarence Mara in Janesville, Wis., will have to set a better example.

Mara came before the judge on a charge of driving with a frosty windshield.

He admitted that he had, but he couldn't see why the law was so upset over it.

He said the officer who drove him to court hadn't bothered to clear the windshield either.

The judge dismissed the case.

The men who believe nothing practical comes out of their daughters' college educations, may have to change their minds.

Joan Call—a co-ed at Baldwin-Wallace College in Cleveland—has come up with a very handy bit of information. She spent an entire term working on the problem of bacteria on dishes.

Her conclusions should be good news to husbands, fathers, sons—and to the women, too.

Miss Call says it's more sanitary to let dishes dry by themselves than to wipe them with a towel.

The French National Broadcasting system has agreed to buy a special brassiere for its woman commentator, Lise Elina, to wear with her evening gown when she accompanies President Vincent Auriol on his visit to London.

The broadcasting system stipulated that after the London visit their radio accents department would retain the brassiere.

At first the company contacted Mlle. Elina's claim, but agreed when she pointed out that a special brassiere was needed to wear with low-cut strapless evening gowns.

(Note: In Britain specially-designed strapless brassieres cost anything up to £10—$31.)

MacArthur Seeks Early Treaty With Japanese

By Frank L. White

MANILA, March 3.—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur wants a peace treaty with Japan before this spring runs out. He may get it, after all.

This possibility took an upturn with President Emmanuel Quirino's sudden announcement that the Philippine government is ready for an early signing of a treaty.

Quirino's surprise move is interpreted as an indication that the peace treaty with Japan will not be far off. So far, the Soviet Union and the western allies have been unable to agree on a treaty.

Even on what powers should be a part of a peace conference.

Of late, however, there has been a good deal of speculation in Japan and in the United States that a treaty may be written without the Soviet Union unless the Russians change their attitude.

MacArthur wants the peace conference in Japan. High allied authorities told this correspondent in Tokyo last November that the occupation commander feels this way.

By having the conference in Tokyo, the treaty makers would be able to eliminate many problems of international politics which have prevented signing of treaties ending the European phase of the war.

MacArthur's chief of staff, Gen. H. H. Arnold, is opposed by some countries represented on the far eastern commission, and by some high U.S. authorities as well.

The general belief in Manila is that the peace treaty with Japan will be signed before this spring runs out.

DEPARTED AND BORROWED of $15,000 this week when he opened new business was Newark, N.J., pawnbroker Benjamin T. Greenfield. Still in his underpants, he tells police how two gunmen who held him up overlooked another $10,000. Trousers were later recovered.

Quebec Housing Subsidy Increased $5 Millions

By the Canadian Press

Quebec's legislative assembly yesterday adopted government bills which increase provincial government housing subsidies by $5,000,000 and boost rural electrification grants by $3,000,000.

The housing bill increases the fund from $7,000,000 to $12,000,000.

The Newfoundland legislature was asked by David L. Matthews (CPC—St. John's) to establish a commission to probe charges of bribery during the 1947 provincial election. Speaker Fernand Phillips said he wanted time to consider the matter.

REDS CHARGED
The Ontario legislature continued three-day debate on the Ontario (COP—Toronto) Document, charged that the Communist party is expelling the unemployed by telling them that unemployment is due to the immigration of displaced persons.

At Winnipeg, Manitoba's coalition government was upheld 4-3 in defeating an opposition resolution condemning it for "violating" parliamentary principles. It was the second vote of confidence this session.

Premier D. L. Campbell would up three-day debate. The Saskatchewan legislature was speaker Tom Johnston said and receive permission to leave his seat and talk from the floor of the house.

INDIAN TREATY
The incident occurred in three-day debate when P. V. Deshaie (Minister) referred to transfer of 27 Metis Indian families last year from the Touchwood constituency in Saskatchewan to the Indian reservation in Saskatchewan.

He said that after the families moved their houses were burned down, so that when some wished to return, they had no homes.

Mr. Johnston, CUF member for Touchwood, said he had been responsible for the move and that no coercion had been used. The homes were unfit for habitation, he said.

Canada's Danger Aledged Greatest

Any Trouble? Would Come From North, Commons Told

OTTAWA, March 3.—Canada is in greater danger than any other country in the world, Howard Green (CPC—Vancouver-Quebec) last night told Commons.

The danger, he stressed, was not from the south, but from the north. "It is a Russian hand," he said.

"If trouble comes, it will be from the north and not from the south," he said.

Members of parliament must be realistic about the situation today, he said. "The shortest and easiest road to the heart of democracy is across the Bering Strait through Alaska, not across Canada and on to the United States."

He saw a grave menace to Canada in the Pacific.

He hoped External Affairs Minister Pearson will announce tomorrow that Canada is advocating a Pacific pact similar to the Atlantic Pact.

"I suggest that Canada's position is as dangerous under existing conditions that she should advocate a Pacific Pact," said Mr. Green.

Turning to domestic issues, he said that at this session parliament should legislate to raise the living standards of Canadians in want.

He was important when he said that the living standards of Canadians were being threatened by the threat of Communism.

He urged that parliament legislate to protect Canadian resources and ensure they are not sold out to the United States.

He mentioned specifically oil, natural gas, iron ore and uranium. They could become the pillars on which Canada could build a great nation.

Canada needed a national policy to control these resources. With such a policy, the resources would go to the Americans, who were the people putting up most of the money for their development.

The Pacific Coast states, Washington, Oregon and California, have produced 21 percent of the population growth in the U.S. since 1928.

Thief Stops Work To Enjoy Dinner

Money Lifted From Pants While Owner Is Asleep

An apparently lazelemy lot of canned corn, tomatoes, raspberry preserves and cheese was enjoyed by thief who ransacked residence of George. From 1140-103 avenue, in owner's absence.

The break-in was discovered yesterday by Harry. From 1140-103 avenue, when he checked the house at owner's request.

He told Magistrate S. G. Main that he had been waiting for money from home at the time and had planned to go to the store and return the $20.

Assistant crown prosecutor Guy Bussard told the court the accused had been in the "same kind of trouble" in both Vancouver and Edmonton on other occasions.

OPERATION COMMENTARY

A Dictaphone system enabling doctors to make immediate oral recording of steno operations has been in use for the past month in Royal Alexandra hospital, authorities reported today.

The Dictaphone was financed by the Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Alexandra, Mrs. John Oliver, president, said.

The Dictaphone, suspended directly over the operating table enables a steno to make a transcription of his report. It was explained that the report is available in two days instead of two weeks as was previously the case.

Health Setup Facing Organizational Worry

Capacity of the city health department's facilities will probably be reached by the end of 1960, and reorganization will then be necessary, Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health, said today.

This year's budget of $70,333, reported last night by the board of health, will "take us to the end of the year," said Dr. Little. It is $4,800 more than actually spent during 1959.

Plans for anticipated re-organization are under preparation by Dr. Little and will be presented to the board in the next few months.

Clinics operated by the department are near the limit of their capacity in the present locations, he said, adding, "our medical services need decentralization to equate with the great increase in population."

inexcusable Carelessness

The public will await with interest the steps the provincial department of health will take with regard to the poisoning of a mental patient at Oliver with paralyde.

Judging from the verdict of the coroner's jury and the evidence given at the inquest, the death of this 18-year-old patient was caused by the most flagrant and inexcusable piece of carelessness ever perpetrated in a public institution.

A hospital attendant, it is reported, gave this patient six ounces instead of six grains of paralyde, which is a powerful hypnotic.

It was testified that the mistake was due to "an error in dispensing."

This is sheer and utter nonsense. Anyone who has ever been employed in a mental hospital must be familiar with the use of paralyde.

It is the favorite hypnotic used in such places because its action is quick and sure and usually calculable. Moreover, its extreme pungency and characteristic smell make it impossible to confuse paralyde with anything else on earth.

A Demand for an Early Budget

There is good sense and urgency behind the plea of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that the minister of finance should present the budget at the earliest possible moment.

So much depends upon the terms of each budget that it is disturbed and unsettled each year until those terms are known.

There is absolutely no reason for the long delay in presenting the budget at each session of parliament. There is no reason for any secrecy regarding the time of its presentation.

Parliament has been sitting for nearly two weeks now, and, of course, the traditional order is that the budget may not come down until the debate on the speech from the Throne is cleared out of the way.

Sometimes this debate is continued for almost a month, while the business of the country stands still waiting to know the terms under which it will operate in the ensuing 12 months.

There is no rhyme nor reason to the system. No one wants to choke off the debate on the speech.

No one wants to limit debate on anything. But surely the debate on the throne speech could be adjourned until the budget is presented and disposed of.

Industry is more than justified in making that demand.

Puritanism and Street Raffles

A considerable volume of righteous indignation seems to be brewing over the raffling of a few automobiles which has been proceeding on Edmonton's streets for some months.

It is possible that the city would do well to insist on the payment of a small rental charge, above the mere fee, might not be amiss.

But when the talk gets around to closing these affairs out entirely, it seems to be a small exercise in puritanism hardly worthy of a great city.

The fact is that every one of these raffles, so far as we know, has been conducted to raise money for a useful purpose.

No one is bludgeoned into buying tickets. No family budget is likely to be seriously embarrassed by the amounts squandered in this manner.

If the practice grows to an unwholesome degree, something should be done about it.

In the meantime these raffles are doing no particular harm and they may be doing a great deal of good.

Why not leave them alone?

Vandals and Hockey Rink Damage

Everything should be done, of course, by parents and police authorities to put an end to the senseless vandalism which has been going on at the South Side and Clarke Stadium rinks on Sunday nights.

If boys haven't got enough sense to refrain from smashing the large light globes at these places while they are closed, they should be denied the privilege of using them while they are open.

But there is another way to avoid this vandalism.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

Drama of Vienna Ends in New York Carouse

Some of the sprightliest talk to be heard in Manhattan these nights is in the coffee houses frequented by the talented and thoroughbred outcasts of Hitler's Europe.

One night, a past-master of the "swindle" found himself surrounded by a group of well-dressed, well-to-do, and well-read individuals, and, though many a cultural door had been slammed in their faces, they remained a spirited and sociable lot, short on money, perhaps, but long on banter and bravado.

Most of the stories spun by these Continental luteniers were of the comic side; yet, once in a while they came up with a yarn which leaves a bitter taste in your throat. For instance, there was the tale about the old gentleman and his grandnephew who, during the summer months, can be seen almost every day on the carousel near the Colosseum.

One day, the old gentleman, who is a well-to-do, well-read, and well-known figure in the world of letters, was seen riding the carousel with a young man, who is a well-to-do, well-read, and well-known figure in the world of letters.

Attracted by the boy's cries, the storm troopers dragged the doctor and his wife from the carousel and were about to take the child when their leader, a youth with a hangman's sense of humor, stopped them. "The kid got the wrong ring," he said. "We've entered a free ride."

As the carousel started up again, the lutenier of "Hitler's" drowned out the storm troopers' screams, and the last the couple were about to see was the storm troopers' backs as they rode away on the merry-go-round.

The surgeon refused. "The need at the hospital," he said, "and I intend to stay as long as I can."

His assistant, however, came to an end of a few sentences later when a detachment of 80 men rode his doorstep. The doctor, who had been waiting to expect them, led his wife and son out the rear door, but as they hurried down the street, a neighbor spotted them and gave the alarm.

When they came to a small corner, they came upon a small carouse, which had been set up for the arrival of the German "liberators," and, thinking fast, the surgeon bought three tickets and climbed aboard with his family as the battered runabout started up.

The child was placed astride a gaudy steer while the parents sat snugly back in one of those swivel chairs, and off they went.

The SS men searched the man and woman and were about to move on when the boy, to whom it was all a game, reached out a rubber band ring and, turning to his parent, shouted, "Look, look! I've got a free ride!"

The surgeon refused. "The need at the hospital," he said, "and I intend to stay as long as I can."

His assistant, however, came to an end of a few sentences later when a detachment of 80 men rode his doorstep. The doctor, who had been waiting to expect them, led his wife and son out the rear door, but as they hurried down the street, a neighbor spotted them and gave the alarm.

When they came to a small corner, they came upon a small carouse, which had been set up for the arrival of the German "liberators," and, thinking fast, the surgeon bought three tickets and climbed aboard with his family as the battered runabout started up.

The child was placed astride a gaudy steer while the parents sat snugly back in one of those swivel chairs, and off they went.

The SS men searched the man and woman and were about to move on when the boy, to whom it was all a game, reached out a rubber band ring and, turning to his parent, shouted, "Look, look! I've got a free ride!"

As the carousel started up again, the lutenier of "Hitler's" drowned out the storm troopers' screams, and the last the couple were about to see was the storm troopers' backs as they rode away on the merry-go-round.

The surgeon refused. "The need at the hospital," he said, "and I intend to stay as long as I can."

U.S. Accused Of Trade Drop Here

Canada's Trading Surplus Declines To $261 Millions

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Government economists have placed the blame for a decline in Canada's international trading surplus at the doorstep of the United States.

Analysing foreign trade, the economists said that the drop in the 1949 favorable balance of trade "was almost entirely caused by a sharp increase in the unfavorable balance with the United States."

Their views were set out in the February issue of Canadian Statistical Review, a 128-page document prepared by bureau of statistics.

SHARP DROP IN YEAR

While the United States tended to cut down Canada's trading surplus, the United Kingdom tended to bolster it. The amount of surplus or deficit is looked on as a measure of a country's international trading health.

Canada's surplus last year slipped to $251,200,000, a sharp drop from the 1948 balance of exports over imports of $417,100,000.

Shipments to foreign countries totalled $3,022,300,000, down about $90,000,000 from 1948.

Imports from foreign countries totalled $2,761,100,000, up more than $100,000,000 from 1948.

MORE TRADE WITH U.K.

The surplus with Britain increased from $80,200,000 in 1948 to $401,800,000 in 1949, despite British efforts to narrow the gap between sales to and purchases from Canada.

Caused partly by an increase in the price of wheat, Canada's exports to the United Kingdom in 1949 beat the 1948 level of $688,900,000 by more than $100,000,000. Imports from U.K. in 1949 totalled $287,400,000, an increase of about $8,000,000 from $279,500,000 in 1948.

BIG DISPARITY WITH U.S.

Canada's sales to U.S. last year totalled $1,565,500,000, or $2,500,000 greater than in 1948.

Purchases from the U.S. reached $1,561,500,000, about $100,000,000 higher than the $1,461,500,000 worth of purchases in the previous year.

"The very small increase in exports to the U.S. was due in large measure to an easing of American demand for Canadian goods," the review said.

This turning away from Canadian goods followed the business recession experienced by the U.S. during the early parts of the year.

Green Claims Ottawa Buys Of 'Favorites'

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadrant) last night accused the government in the commons of playing "favorites" in the purchase of office buildings in Vancouver.

He charged "this business was handed out by the government to favorites."

The purchases involved $1,536,105 for the Alvin building, $1,850,000 for the Beggs building and more than $2,500,000 for the Catell building.

Works Minister Fournier said he was satisfied that the purchases were a good buy. In fact, he was proud of them. The cost per square foot was low and the buildings were available much more quickly than they would have been had the government built them.

Pressure for more space for government branches in Vancouver had been considerable.

"There were nights that I could not sleep thinking that unemployment insurance might be paid on the street when we were thrown out of the Vancouver hotel," he said.

"At that time, the income tax occupied six different buildings and I did not know just how many buildings unemployed insurance occupied."

Murderer To Get Baptism

CHARLESTON, W.Va., March 3.—(AP)—A man sentenced to die for murder is to be baptized Sunday in a creek while handcuffed to a minister.

Sheriff Carson Richards said today he has agreed to the ceremony for Harry Albee Burdette, 28.

Burdette and another man were convicted of killing to death Edward C. O'Brien last summer. Burdette said he had been converted to the Baptist faith since his conviction a couple of weeks ago.

Dollar Freeing Urged To Find Own Level

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—J. M. Macdonnell, chief opposition financial critic, called on the government last night to exercise a "bold" stroke and free the Canadian dollar from all control.

He urged that Canada take the lead among western nations in ditching currency restrictions. He should not underestimate her influence in western countries.

WOULD FREE DOLLAR

Mr. Macdonnell felt the country's economic structure was sufficiently strong to allow the Canadian dollar to be cut free on the world money market.

The dollar, previously held at parity with the United States, was placed on an official 100-per-cent discount last September following devaluation steps taken by Britain and more than a score of other countries.

Mr. Macdonnell said that the "forests of controls" would become "deeper and deeper" if Canada did not do away with them. There had to be a beginning somewhere and it was up to Canada to take the first step.

"I believe we have a place in the world," he added. "The fact that we are first door to the United States strengthens that place. Our parity with the United States must give a lead which would prove fruitful."

Alberta Oil Is Hailed By Federal Department

By Forbes Rhude

TORONTO, March 3.—(CP)—Canada's fabulous mining industry starts this week-end to celebrate a half-century of progress at the colorful annual meeting of the Prospectors and Developers Association.

Statistically since 1900 it has

Wrested from the earth and rock (iron) deposits in the steep rock areas in Ontario in 1939, and in the Labrador-Quebec area of Quebec in 1946.

"It seems clear that the world demand for most products of the mines will continue to increase over the years and, as a main source of supply of these products, Canada should benefit in an increasing extent."

A lot of memories will be brought back by the picture gallery alone—some 400 pictures collected from across Canada of persons, many now historic, many now forgotten.

ALBERTA HAILED

Says Federal Mines Minister McCann in sending his greetings: "It is significant that some of the most useful developments in the industry have occurred within the past 15 years."

Greatest of these and most timely was the discovery of oil in the rich fields of Leduc-Woodstock and Redwater in Alberta.

Somewhat comparable in importance were the discoveries of hematite (iron) deposits in the steep rock areas in Ontario in 1939, and in the Labrador-Quebec area of Quebec in 1946.

Railways Are Too Big Commission Is Told

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Canada has had too much railway construction for the rail traffic available in this country, the Royal Commission on Transportation was told yesterday by S. J. W. Liddy, assistant comptroller of the C.P.R.

He agreed with a statement of the 1900-31 royal commission on to seek a return on capital which transportation that the railways originally had been given to the "over-built" between 1901 and 1920.

"The country is just now catching up in traffic volume," Mr. Liddy said under examination by C. D. Sheppard, Manitoba counsel, before the inquiry.

Mr. Sheppard was seeking the factors that led to a decline in the C.P.R.'s rate of financial return on its investment since around 1920. He suggested the biggest factors were the development of automobile and plane transportation.

Mr. Liddy said there were factors, all right, but the biggest element had been the advent of competition within the railway industry itself through over-building.

LONDON, March 3.—(CP)—Friends of the royal family say that Prince Charles has made fast progress since he returned to London with his mother from the King's Norfolk estate.

WORLD COURT SIDES WITH RUSS ON VETO

Exclusive to The Bulletin

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, March 3.—(BUP)—The International Court of Justice ruled 12 to two today that the United Nations General Assembly cannot admit states to UN membership without a recommendation from the Security Council.

In effect the ruling upholds a veto on memberships by the Big Five powers represented on the council—Russia, Britain, France, China and the United States.

The advisory opinion was asked by the General Assembly after repeated Soviet vetoes in Security Council prevented numerous prospective UN members, including Italy, from obtaining membership. The dissenting votes were cast by the judges of Chile and Brazil.

The court ruling upheld the position of Russia. It has maintained that the Security Council must agree on all memberships.

EXPERT INSTRUCTION on hitting baseballs is given to seven-year-old Michael Gordon at Boston Braves' spring training camp. Correcting his batting stance is Willard Marshall, left, and showing him proper way to hold bat is his father, Sid Gordon. Marshall and Gordon were taken to Boston by New York during off-season in deal which sent Eddie Stanky and Alvin Dark to the Giants.

Expect 150 to Enter School Ring Tournaments

Some 150 boys are expected to enter the 1950 school wrestling and boxing tournaments which are billed for West-glen auditorium on March 23, 24 and 25.

Among the better known performers who will again be in action are Hugh Conn, Allan Skelton, Alexey McNally, Neil Neville, and Oscar Kruger. The competitors will be classified according to their school grade and their weights. For example, an intermediate boy will be matched with another intermediate boy, and so on down the line.

Altogether, there will be 52 divisions of boxing and wrestling, ranging from the microbe to the heavyweight class. Divisional winners will be presented with crests, and the Cetti Goldstick trophies will again be awarded to the best wrestling performers. Skelton and Conn won the Goldstick cups last season.

There will be no wrestling for boys entering for the first time, and those who have competed prior to this year will automatically be assigned to an open class.

P. J. Brown of St. George's public school is in charge of this annual show. Said he yesterday: "These boxing and wrestling tournaments are intended to encourage boys in fair play and good sportsmanship. Boys are discouraged from turning to a professional career too early in their lives."

Modern Ball Player Rugged as Oldsters
CLEVELAND, O.—(UP)—The myth that "old-time ballplayers were more rugged than the present day crop" has been blasted to smithereens by one of baseball's outstanding selectors.

Dr. Morrison H. Castle, who is retiring from the game after serving as team physician for the Cleveland Indians during the past 40 years, says too many fans have the wrong idea about modern day players' durability.

"The popular idea," he explained, "that old-time ball players were more rugged than the present crop is as much lost in time because of injury line as there is now."

REMEMBER THE ORIOLES?
To support his claim that the old Baltimore Orioles, famed for their indomitable spirit in the face of injuries, had nothing on the current crop of players, Dr. Castle tells of an outfielder who played for Cleveland not so long ago.

The player in question came up to the Indians as a youngster, the doctor recalled. He had been a .350 hitter in the minors and a club executive brought him to Dr. Castle's office for a thorough physical examination.

"Well, sir," Dr. Castle sighed, "I found that the player was completely blind in one eye. The executive who brought him in could hardly believe it, but since the fellow had done so well in the minors and seemed like a good hiner, we decided to keep the discovery a secret strictly between ourselves."

Of all the players Dr. Castle has examined during his long and successful tenure with the Cleveland club, he rates Jeff Heath, former outfielder for the Indians, Senators, Braves and Braves, "the most muscular player I have ever tested."

At the other end of the scale and read-like Russ Christopher, who hurled for the Indians in 1942.

The white-haired, 72-year-old Dr. Castle admitted he was bowing out of baseball "with great reluctance."

But, he declared, "the work has reached the point where it is too big an undertaking."

"Make no mistake," he added, eyes twinkling, "I have enjoyed every minute of it and I'd certainly like to complete a full 50 years with the ball club. But those remaining four years just look too hard."

AT BANFF

Yank Skier Cross Country Champion

BANFF, Alta., March 3.—(CP)—Hans Holias, 26-year-old lumberjack worker from Eugene, Ore., yesterday won the North American and Canadian cross-country ski championships, covering the 11-mile endurance test in one hour, nine minutes and 59 seconds.

Three minutes and 53 seconds back of the 1940 United States cross-country champion was Claude Richer, 20-year-old physical student at Ottawa University.

The victory for Holias is the second North American title to go to a skier from the United States. Last week Janette Burr of Seattle, Wash., won the women's down-hill race.

Third best of the 15 skiers to show off on the timber-lined mountain trail—which is a climb of a third of the way, a level stretch for another third and a downhill spew for the remainder—was Gosta Lindgren, now of Sweden.

The 38-year-old veteran of Swedish and Norwegian cross-country races was clocked at 1:15:13.

Karl Maltach of Austria, 24, won the 11-mile endurance test in one hour, nine minutes and 59 seconds.

Yank Skier Cross Country Champion
BANFF, Alta., March 3.—(CP)—Hans Holias, 26-year-old lumberjack worker from Eugene, Ore., yesterday won the North American and Canadian cross-country ski championships, covering the 11-mile endurance test in one hour, nine minutes and 59 seconds.

Three minutes and 53 seconds back of the 1940 United States cross-country champion was Claude Richer, 20-year-old physical student at Ottawa University.

The victory for Holias is the second North American title to go to a skier from the United States. Last week Janette Burr of Seattle, Wash., won the women's down-hill race.

Third best of the 15 skiers to show off on the timber-lined mountain trail—which is a climb of a third of the way, a level stretch for another third and a downhill spew for the remainder—was Gosta Lindgren, now of Sweden.

The 38-year-old veteran of Swedish and Norwegian cross-country races was clocked at 1:15:13.

Karl Maltach of Austria, 24, won the 11-mile endurance test in one hour, nine minutes and 59 seconds.

They know... IT IS NOT MONEY ALONE

More than a million and a half people deal with the Bank of Montreal, and they know that it is not money alone they deal in when they come to us. It goes beyond that. These people have confidence in the Bank; they know that their money is safe with us, and that they will be fairly treated in their business dealings.

We try to keep constantly in mind that the Bank is not primarily an impressive row of figures or an imposing building. We think rather of the Bank as the local manager and his staff, on whom our customers can always call for friendly counsel and service. Our branch-bank system is founded upon this relationship.

A man's relationship with his bank manager is, and should be, a highly personal one. Yet in each of our 549 branches, behind this confidential relationship, there stand the resources and stability of a nation-wide, century-old institution. Thus the strength of the institution is linked with human understanding in the service of the individual.

I believe sincerely that this is the spirit guiding our relations with the public today. Without such a spirit, the Bank could not maintain or justify its place in the economy of this country, nor would we be able to give our best to Canada in the years of great promise which lie ahead.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

The LARK

By Theodore Bonnet

Synopsis: Little Wheeler, the Mudlark, having found his way into Windsor Castle to start Queen Victoria and George at dinner, is now the centre of controversy and discussion. Scotland Yard and the Guards are on the case. He has been given a bath by three towering guardsmen. Now go on with the CHAPTER XIV

Rabber drew a hairbrush towel after his bath. Wheeler stood unswerving in a circle of soldiers-up for inspection, his skin shone and buttocks trembling with the cold, while they turned him round and round, peering into his ears, probing his scalp, making him each foot to show the bottom; he was mortified.

"He'll do," an officer said.

Wheeler's hands were two fig leaves in front of him; he looked up the gameness of his chin; underlip betrayed by eyes that were on the verge of tears again and said apologetically, "I try, I am done here, yes, sir, won't you just give a chap a blue-spree?"

"What's that?"

"Baw bags, sir. For although he might endure the cold on the rest of him, he was of course un-manned without his trousers."

Wheeler Garbed In Old Clothes

But by the Cossack's order all his clothes had been taken out and burned. He was thrown a bundle from the housekeeper's charity bin. This time he found a boy's black trousers (patched), and stockings (heavily darned) which pretty well fitted him, a cambric shirt somewhat too large, a pair of shoes battered but still serviceable and approximately the right size, a short jacket only slightly too long at the wrists, and an old cap. There was also a novel garment that delighted him. It was made of wool and had long arms and legs, and he had intended to put this on last as a sort of overall, but the soldiers stripped him and made him put it on first. It felt pleasantly warm and warm, but it irritated his skin and he was not at all satisfied with the arrangement. He did not dare to argue, and besides, he could not wait to put on the old garments too. He was thrilled with all these new clothes, the finest he ever had in his life, and when he stood up in them before one of the long mirrors he thought with a smile that they made him look a proper lark. But after a moment he wondered what had become of his own, particularly his coat. He would have liked to keep his coat. The new jacket wasn't so warm as his, he perceived now, and he would not be able to get a quarter so much into his pockets. That was important in his business. And he began to examine the jacket more critically now, feeling somehow that he had given his coat for it; and in the midst of his good fortune he had a dim sense of loss.

He was given a dish of gruel for his breakfast, and was just scraping the bottom when Cossackbell returned, trailed by his dutiful staff and also by the butler, McIlinden, whom the colonel had been having at in the mess-hall.

"That's better!" the colonel said, surveying the transformed prisoner, and he walked around him on a tour of inspection, breathing freely now, for the boy who had reeked of the primal fall of man now smelt like nothing human but as safe as a house hospital.

Everyone Wants Poor Wheeler

The inquiry resumed. All that need be said of it is that it went very like the other series, with about the same damage to the nerves of both parties that it added promptly at one, recurred at two-thirty, and ended two and a half hours later—in a sudden blister, defeat for the Grenadier Guards. The Governor had signed a paper forcing them to pick up the prisoner to Scotland Yard.

And so, at five o'clock, Wheeler passed into the hands of the relentless Bushier Ash.

The inspector probed into him for hours that evening while Wheeler sat fascinated by the measured breathing of the hearth. Wheeler slept that night under guard of Wootton and Dacey in a cubicle chamber of the Round Tower. The next morning he led Ash over the route from St. George's Gate to the cauldron that was no longer open, and went with his captor that day to London.

His first train ride—to be lodged privately, as befitted an enemy of the Throne, in a light little upper room of the Clerkenwell House of Detention, there to languish an unconscious time till the inquiry should be over.

No, there would be no going back up the cauldron, and he feared just then that there would be no going much of anywhere else either.

He climbed up to his bunk to the iron-grilled window, replace that over the route of Clerkenwell, he could see Poplar, but he could not, nor Litchfield, nor Slough, nor even the river, London lay under the familiar haze of all his commonplace, old and dirty, in the waking afternoon.

Word Spreads Of Young Intruder

The Times's correspondent at Windsor, having heard of the Queen's burglar next morning, filled Printing House Square, for such Scotland Yard confirmed so much of the story as at the moment it could be the next day the use of the guard at the castle mysteriously doubled, with the Grenadiers in a bafflingly hostile mood, with all kinds of rumor coming down from whether incident, it occurred to them that he probably knew a good deal else besides. His father was in his place before him, and his grandfather before that; there's a market of royal secrets that man could tell if he was minded, but they'd buy them all with him. He could write a book, I tell you. A regular walking archives, that's what he is; and there he goes—mum."

Case Becomes Nationally Known

An national interest in the case grew, it followed that interest in the case grew more than proportionately in the town of Windsor, which slumbered all the latest privacy comment over the castle walls and piped it to London, which distributed it to the rest of Britain. Yet on the national scale, no version of the story at first galled any measurable headway over the others, for although most of the servants leaned towards the boy in the iron mask myth, as the case of the Devil's Tower came to be called by its Tory detractors, the Grenadier Guards kept hunting privately at some kind of criminal plot, about the nature of which they were fascinatingly vague. Impartial thinkers in the public houses pointed out that the Household Troops would be as likely to know the truth as anyone, and a lot likelier too, while on the whole women and radicals preferred the other story.

"The English are really a romantic people; sometimes I forget that, and then something like this comes along to remind me of it. I do believe they regard for Majesty rather like the heroine of a novel."

Disraeli's Remark Is Forgiven

Disraeli is on record as having made some cynical remarks about the English at this period of his career, but for that he must be forgiven, because at the time he was understandably annoyed with them. For years he had tried to do something to alleviate slum conditions, to awaken the land to the dreadful hazards of bad drainage and fever, rickety rookeries and oppressive working conditions; he had fought these things even in his novels, and now that he had come to power he was determined to write them out of existence in the laws. But it was hard going, kings members of his own Party only harrassed back at him that this was not the business of Parliament, but of plumbers—a policy of sewage. He had spoken of "Two Englands": the rich and the poor, pleaded as reasonable, and he pleaded as he could for a bridge across the gap between; but the Old Guard whom he had thought almost converted to his own new conception of Toryism, had only muttered, in his satiric mood, the confusion into which they had been thrown by the East End boy who had visited Windsor, mounted Disraeli.

Kite-Flying Custom

Famous In Far East

In the spring most boys get some thin pieces of wood, strong tissue paper and yards of string to make themselves a kite. They are all made alike by boys in Canada and usually consist of a flat kite with a long tail.

But in places like China, Japan and Polynesia people make kites that would stagger the heart of any youngster. There it is an adult sport which has developed to the point where it is almost a science. With some races it has a very religious meaning and is used in their cult ceremonies.

For example, the Mangian kite has bunches of leaves attached to the tail, with the number of leaves equal to the stars in certain constellations. These Polynesian kites are over five feet long and covered with bark cloth stained with dyes made from herbs. The ancient kites of Tahiti were far longer and took four men to hold them when they were launched.

They were shaped in various ways—the Polynesian usually had their built like large ovals and diamonds, while in Tahiti they were shaped like birds, fishes and even men.

The kites made in Tahiti today are often six feet long, with tails 300 feet long. It is a ritual in some of the South Sea Islands to chant their religious songs while the kite flies into the air.

But not all kites are used for religious and sporting events. Near Singapore, kites are used in fishing for garfish. The fishing kite is flown from a canoe, either from a rod or by hand, with the bait at the end of a line that drags from the kite. In some South Sea Islands, the kite is used to scare the enemy into thinking they have a powerful fighting machine. Often a fine line was attached to the kite which was flown in the night to represent a flaming demon.

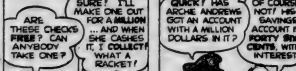

Great kite-flying contests are held on certain days of the year in the larger towns of Japan, and sometimes music boxes are attached to act as a banner. In most cases the kites are shaped like birds of various kinds or like fishes and demons, suggesting some of their religious beliefs.

POPULAR IN CHINA

Kite-flying is very common throughout China, both among the old and young. The peasants sometimes use kites as a means of getting over their houses in the belief that they will scare away evil spirits. Probably the custom of flying kites had its origin in China. Historians have proven that kites were used by armies in Japan over 600 years ago, which were built so large that a man could sit in them like a chair. The next time you decide to build a kite for the spring, just remember that there are many different designs to choose from, and any book in the library can give you ideas.

Used In Sports

In Japan and Java, kite-fighting is a favorite sport. In Nagasaki the purpose of the opponent is to cut comrade's kite-string by means of powdered glass glued to the string; but in Java the essence of the fighting is to foul the opponent's kite.

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Story

Uncle Wiggily looked across the road, from where his sky auto was parked, to the field where the goldenrod flowers were growing. Flitter, the butterfly, hoped to get some gold for his wings from the flowers. It was Flitter the orphan rabbit who had thought of this. "Well, what are we waiting for?" asked Buster the rabbit, who was on the road across the field. The field of goldenrod flowers and watch Flitter get gold for his wings. Come on, daddy!

"I think it will not be so easy as it seemed at first, Buster, to hop across the road to the field of goldenrod," said Uncle Wiggily. "Why not, daddy?"

"Because there is a deep wide brook of water just the other side of this road. The brook is between us and the goldenrod flowers. The brook is too wide for us to jump and too deep to wade. We must stay on this side of the water."

"That's all right," said Uncle Buster as he wobbled his chin whiskers. "Flitter can fly across the brook. Though he has no gold for his wings, so that he may 'hover' on tomorrow on Golden Day, still Flitter can fly across the brook and reach the flowers."

"Yes, I could do that," answered the butterfly. "But I do not want to fly away from you and your friends, Uncle Wiggily. It was Flitter who thought of yellow dust from the goldenrod flowers for my wings. I would like her, and all of you, to see the blossoms scatter their golden dust on my wings. Perhaps there is some way you and the others might cross the brook, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I'll hop down to the edge of the water and look," said the rabbit gentleman.

Uncle Wiggily hopped across the road to the brook. On the other side was the field of goldenrod flowers. They nodded their yellow blossoms in the wind. But the brook between was wide and deep and flowed swiftly.

"I do not want to fly away from you," said the butterfly. "Perhaps if I go high into the air I may see a bridge or some way across. Just then, suddenly, a voice cried: 'Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug!'"

"What's that?" asked Double Dip, the little pig.

"That noise was made by a big frog," Buster answered.

"Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug!" croaked the voice again and again, from the bank of the brook, again he grunted, "Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug! Jump a Lug!"

"Why are you making so much noise, if you please?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Of course, frogs must croak, but why are you croaking so loudly, Mr. Frog?"

"I am practicing for a Lug a Lug Day," the frog answered. "That is the day after Golden Day. Whenever ever frog croaks louder, wins a prize. But I didn't come out of the brook to tell you that. I came up to tell you how to get across the brook into the field of the goldenrod."

"Oh, please tell us!" begged Buster.
